If a Kitten Drowns
Her, Calvin, Bryan
By Arthur Brisbane

THE TOWN OF HERRIN, where so many were killed in Klan and anti-Klan, boisterous and prohibition feuds, has been evoked by a great religious revival. One thousand are "saved." And everything is peace, instead of violence.

IN DAYTON, scene of the Bryan-Darwin-monkey trial, something happened to the lighting system, darkness settled down and fundamentalists were worried. Satan, they thought, had come to town.
Strange that good, religious people should worry about darkness. Why not leave that to the friends of the monkeys?
A hundred years ago, in great storms, deeply religious people reported devils riding in the wind. Church bells were rung to drive them away. Such things have not been reported lately. There is progress.

GEORGE KARTMAN, one of the most highly scientific of the world's industrialists, co-operating with the Army Air Service, has perfected photography from flying machines.
Lieutenant Godard announces a new process developed in Kaman laboratories, enabling fliers to take photographs over enemy lines, develop them in the air in seven minutes, to fly back and drop them over their own lines without descending.
It is even more complicated, and it is well for this country to own and understand the complications.

WE READ this morning that floods have swept Korea. 2,000 are missing, houses and crops swept away. And it doesn't cross much. If we saw one kitten drowning in the gutter we should be more affected by it.
This means that, fortunately for our peace of mind, we have little imagination.

DEEPLY RELIGIOUS men often make mistakes in science. Mr. Watson Davis mentions two instances. Martin Luther condemned savagely "an astrologer who strove to show that the world revolves, not the heavens or the sun, or the moon, the sun and the moon. This fool wishes to reverse the entire science of astronomy." But today Galileo is the fool.

CALVIN, quoting the Psalm which says: "The world also is established that it can not be moved," added, "Who will venture to place the authority of Copernicus above that of the Holy Spirit?"
And the good John Wesley thought the new idea in astronomy showed a trend toward infidelity. These were three good Protestants, they all worried about Galileo, as Bryan now worries about Darwin. But religion has survived their worry.

THIS "humorous" paragraph is published:
A country editor, having worked hard for thirty years, retired with $50,000 capital. He explained as follows:
"I attribute my ability to retire with $50,000 to the fact that I worked very hard and saved every cent—and to the death of an uncle who left me $49,999.50."

TEN THOUSAND country editors could testify that there is more truth than humor in that anecdote. The most useful, unprinted and earnest body of men in the nation are the editors of country newspapers.
The patriotic fact is that they would be highly prosperous men if business and advertisers realized the truth, that the country newspaper, in proportion to its circulation, is THE BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM IN THE COUNTRY.

THE METROPOLITAN, German, high dignitary of the Greek Church, has been outrageously treated, his long hair and beard cut off by ruffians lacking respect for religion.

REAL BRYAN-DARROW FIGHT TODAY

THREAT OF CLEAN UP FAILS TO CLOSE REVERE RUM SHOPS

FRAMINGHAM MAN HUNTED AS AUTOIST WHO KIDNAPED GIRL

Natick, July 15.—After battling a man in a careening touring car in Natick, Miss Annette Litchfield, sixteen years old, of North Scituate, leaped from his clutches and landed bruised and bleeding in the road.
Suffering with a terribly hurt body, incriminated forehead, dislocated elbow and a broken tooth, with her clothes almost torn off, the girl crawled to a nearby house where she was treated by a doctor and later taken to the home she was visiting in West Natick.
A married Framingham man, who is believed to be her assailant, will be questioned by Chief of Police Joseph Evans of Natick, as soon as he can be found.
The girl was virtually kidnapped by the driver of the automobile, according to her story, and that of her father, Evelyn Hobson, for he was leaving them both at the door of the Hobson home, No. 191 West Central street, after taking them from the apartment in Framingham, where he dragged Annette back into the car and read away.
A wild chase followed, the Hobson girl's father, Frederick L. Hobson, with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Litchfield, parents of Annette, in the rear seat of his automobile, driving like mad through Natick and out into the country in a fighting effort to catch the fleeing touring car.
The police were also notified and were scouring the outskirts of the town. Miss Litchfield made her escape at a lonely spot on Hartford street.
"He drove through the streets just as fast as he could, with one hand at the same time holding me in a vicious grip with his other arm," said Miss Litchfield.
"I raised blows on his face and head, and I tore his cheeks with my Continued on Page 5, Column 8.

PROSECUTOR TURNED PREACHER

BRYAN-DARROW CLASH BRINGS SCOPES CRISIS

Courthouse, Dayton, Tenn., July 15 (U.S.).—The Scopes trial approached a new crisis today in the pending clash between the forces of religion and science over the admission of testimony on the relation of evolution to the divine origin of man.
A score of nationally prominent scientists have been summoned by counsel for John Thomas Scopes, the youthful defendant, for the purpose of proving that evolution does not conflict with the Bible. These "Master Minds" of science will be the defense's chief hope of acquitting Scopes but their presence has met with bitter opposition from the State.
With the prosecution opposed to placing the scientists on the stand, a projected legal battle was expected. The State, in earlier announcements, attacked the proposed scientific testimony as immaterial, incompetent and unrelated to the guilt or innocence of Scopes.
There was a steady stream of mountain folk heading toward the courthouse.

FIVE ARE INJURED AS THREE AUTOS CRASH

Five persons were injured today in a triangular auto collision on Jamaica road, near Willow Pond road. John J. McCarthy, thirty-five years old, 14 Bay street, Rosbury, is being held under guard at the City Hospital by the Back Bay police, who say he was responsible for the accident.
The other four, after being treated, were released. McCarthy denies he was in an auto accident, claiming he got his car and bruises in a social fight.
The car first hit one driven by Henry Herbert, Jr., of No. 75 Brookfield street, Lawrence, Mr. Herbert, a twenty-year-old son, Fred, was out a little.
Then the car hit a second McCarthy. The operating caromed into a third machine, driven by Hossane Carrier, twenty-five years old, of No. 18 Adams street, Lawrence. He and Johnnie Herbert, of No. 75 Brookfield street, Lawrence, suffered minor injuries.
As a some mystery about it all. The police picked McCarthy up because he was on the scene when they arrived, for he was out slightly and seemed the likeliest suspect.

Twins Born to Kin of "Lucky" Baldwin

Los Angeles, July 15 (A.P.).—The birth of two great-granddaughters of "Lucky" Baldwin, late California millionaire landholder, was announced here today.

Their mother was formerly Miss Nell Maslin.

GIVE LIE TO STORY OF LOTTA'S 'DAUGHTER'

Two surprise witnesses took the stand today in Suffolk Probate Court to combat the claim of Mrs. Ida Manning Blankenburg of Tulsa, Okla., that she is a daughter of Lotta Crabtree, famous Boston actress, who left millions to charity.
Mrs. Blankenburg had finished her own testimony, in her fight to share in the estate, when counsel for the administrators called Charles Walters of Rochester, N. Y.
Walters quickly testified that on December 24 and 25, 1877, the latter day Lotta was being married to an English actor, in Lancaster, England, according to Mrs. Blankenburg's story. Lotta was appearing at his father's theatre in Rochester. Mrs. Blankenburg's story is based on an entry in an old bible, produced in court, in which appears a record of Lotta's marriage to George Manning and the subsequent birth of a daughter, Ida Manning.
The second surprise witness was Joseph Crabtree, of Crabtree Ford, Illinois. He is a brother of John W. Crabtree, one of the claimant's star witnesses, who told of Lotta's bringing Mrs. Blankenburg, as a babe of nine months, to his father's house in 1879.
Joseph Crabtree testified that he had always considered Ida, now Mrs. Blankenburg, his real sister. He admitted, however, that his name did not appear in the family Bible which recorded births.

LIQUOR STILL FLOWS BUT TIP-OFF MEN GUARD BUSY BARS

In Revere's far-flung tenderloin they were a little more discreet today. And that was all.
District Attorney O'Brien has threatened to put the State constabulary in charge if conditions don't improve.
Mayor Walsh has instructed his police force to get busy and show results.
Chief of Police Ivey has taken the warpath and told his men to come to this.

REVERE MAN'S ARREST BARES $15,000 LOOT

Many burglaries in Revere and surrounding communities were cleared up today, according to the Revere police, when Leo Genna, alias Joseph Tene, with rooms in Toland street, Revere, and Liberty street, Lynn, was arraigned in Chelsea court.
Jewelry, clothing, silverware, mopkins and combs, valued at more than $15,000 and alleged to have been stolen in the many burglaries, were found in the rooms of Genna, who, Revere police say, has a Boston police record.
Genna was captured by Patrolman Arthur Revere of Revere, single-handed, while the alleged burglar was, mopkins and combs, valued Continued on Page 2, Column 6.

THRONGS AT QUINCY TO GREET COOLIDGE

All Quincy is out today to greet President Coolidge and the First Lady on their visit to the shores of the two Presidents and other historical points of interest on the South Shore.
As the time for the arrival of the Presidential party was many hours away, the town was early, early breaking out flags, bunting and other decorations in honor of the trip.
The Presidential party will reach Quincy later than announced yesterday. The U. S. S. Mayflower will not leave Marblehead until 1 o'clock on Wednesday.

GERMANY ASKS U. S. TO JOIN IN 'ZEP' POLAR DASH

ARCTIC 'ZEP' FOR U. S. AIRS ARE FORECAST

Dr. Eckener Wants Americans to Help Blaze Way for Sky Traffic in the Far North

By S. D. WEYER
(Copyright, 1925, by International News Service)

Berlin, July 15.—America today was asked to join Germany in a dirigible expedition to the North Pole, each country to fly its own giant dirigible, but with the two keeping in constant touch and assisting and supplementing each other.

The invitation was extended by Dr. Hugo Eckener, pilot in the transatlantic delivery of the naval dirigible Los Angeles.

"I cannot imagine a greater guarantee of the success and safety of this epoch-making Arctic exploration with stratagem than in your country and mine joining hands in the same spirit of enthusiasm that marked the Los Angeles transatlantic flight on the part of the two peoples on both sides of the ocean," Dr. Eckener is quoted in an interview with International News Service, said.

TOURS TO ARCTIC

"If each country starts building an Arctic Zeppelin in the immediate future, we can start together next spring," the famous dirigible designer and pilot continued. "Leaving simultaneously and meeting in the Arctic, we can proceed with comradely, mutual assistance."

"I think the ultimate result will be the establishment of a regular air traffic from Rotterdam via the North Pole to Alaska and back. I visualize the summer tourists of both hemispheres, in some future year, spending their vacations in taking cross-Arctic airship trips."

"I believe the expedition would result also in invaluable study of the unexplored region between Alaska and the Pole."

TWO BARS NEEDED

"No two countries are more intimately fitted for this enterprise than the home of the Zeppelins and America, which has shown such wonderful success in handling big dirigibles and which has already done so much in Arctic exploration," Dr. Eckener said there should be two bases for the joint expedition—one in Alaska, established by America, and another in Germany, established by Germany. Both must have radio stations, all needed supplies and provisions for emergency landings.

Six drill teams were entered in the contest for the national championship and several more entered the exhibition drill classification. The Gonzales from Jackson, Mich., were favored to win the competition.

Found Dead

Stanley Gulonicki, seven-year-old South Boston boy, whose body was picked up on the Broadway bridge, near the South Boston. Police are endeavoring to solve the circumstances of his death.

POLICE PROBING DEATH OF BOY ON BRIDGE

Boston police today are endeavoring to untangle a maze of conflicting stories to find an explanation for the death of Stanley Gulonicki, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gulonicki of No. 190 Silver street, South Boston.

Young Gulonicki was found dead on the Broadway bridge, near the South Boston. It is believed that he was struck by an automobile.

There are no witnesses. A neighbor of the Gulonickis boy is under arrest on suspicion of being connected with the boy's death. He denied, however, that he was anywhere near the scene.

The boy's body was found lying near the burning by Robert M. Sells of No. 457 East 2nd street, South Boston, and John Cuddihy, No. 30 Howe street, Dorchester, as they were passing in an auto.

They rushed the boy to the City Hospital but he was declared dead upon arrival.

Then another boy, who was with the former, declared that a blue touring car was speeding away just as they found their companion on the street.

ARRAIGN BARRY BROTHERS IN CLUB CRASH

Daniel Barry of No. 23 Audubon road, brother of Timothy J. Barry and alleged assistant manager of the alleged Pickwick Club, was arraigned today in Superior Criminal Court as the twelfth defendant in connection with the tragic Beach street collision.

With him was arraigned his brother Timothy on a murder charge contained in a substitute indictment returned today by the Grand Jury. Timothy Barry was arraigned for the first time last Saturday.

The indictment against Daniel Barry charges that he maintained a common nuisance at No. 6 to 12 Beach street, address of the Pickwick Club.

To this charge, he pleaded not guilty and was allowed to go on $500 on his own recognizance. He brother furnished bail of $2,000 on the manslaughter charge.

Immediately following the arraignments, counsel for defendants, now numbering twelve, settled down for arguments before Judge Lunniss on preliminary motions to quash the indictments and to permit defendants to waive jury trial in favor of trial before a single justice.

Alleged irregularities in the Grand Jury proceedings out of which the indictments came, formed the main grounds for the pleas.

While no precedent is said to exist in Massachusetts for waiving of a jury trial by a defendant charged with a felony, counsel for the accused declared themselves, as so convinced that their clients are removed from culpability in the crash, that they desire a speedy trial before a single justice.

ALHAMBRA RIVAL LIVELY CONTEST

Boston Delegates Determined to Elect Dr. Harry F. MacLeod Commander

Atlantic City, N. J., July 15.—Boston delegates to the annual convention of the Order of the Alhambra are waging an interesting contest on the floor of the convention today for the election of Dr. Harry F. MacLeod of Boston as supreme commander.

Opposed to the Boston man is Visitor John J. Kelley of Chicago, who is backed by a strong Western delegation.

When the convention session opened today, Boston had a slight edge on the situation, but the two delegates, who twenty-four hours ago were confident of victory, knew that they had a struggle ahead of them.

HUB MEN DRAW IN.

But for an unfortunate happening on the floor of the convention, Dr. MacLeod would likely have been elected to the head of the organization without a serious contest.

Chicago and New York became involved in a heated argument over a resolution providing that the constitution of the order be changed to provide that only one caravan be permitted in a city.

Chicago, with only one caravan, was back of the resolution. New York, with several small but growing caravans, opposed it. The Boston delegates used every means to keep out of the fight, but they were finally drawn into it. The resolution was finally amended to provide that no caravans now established should be affected by the change.

Visitor Kelley was the leader for the Western delegates in the fight and his able leadership won him a large following.

TEST VOTE CLOSE.

The final vote on the resolution was regarded as a test of strength between the candidates of the Boston and Chicago men for the leadership. In the voting the resolution carried by the narrow margin of ten votes.

During the evening the Boston delegates were the more numerous of the delegates from the Western cities in an effort to cement support to Dr. MacLeod. It was believed that there were many delegates who voted against the resolution who were impelled to do so only on the merits of the resolution and in the election of a supreme commander today they would be found in the Boston column.

At the opening of the convention today the Boston men who are leading Dr. MacLeod campaign were believed that with no untoward incident arising before the vote Dr. MacLeod would win, but all were convinced the margin would be extremely narrow.

FIND RURAL MAIL MAN DEAD BY WRECKED CAR

Bellevue Park, Va., July 15.—Authorities are investigating the death of Ray James Rand, rural mail carrier, who was found dead near here beside his overturned auto.

The last place he was stopped was at the Patrick O'Brien farm house about six miles north of here. Residents further on the route wondering at his non-appearance, started an investigation. They found his body by his overturned car.

LAW RESCINDING VETS' PREFERENCE IN FORCE

The law enacted by the last Legislature, removing veterans' preference, as it applies to dismissal under the civil service rules, is now in effect.

Under the old law, veterans in the civil service had the right of appeal to the Civil Council, the Board of Directors or the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, if removed from office. Now they are on the same basis as other public employees with respect to removal.

Resumption of the arbitration of the wage demands of the employees of the Boston Elevated Railway Company is expected within a few days as the result of the virtual settlement of the method of arbitration.

Roland W. Borden and James H. Vaher, arbitrators representing the trustees of the railway company and the employees, are expected to select the third member of the board tomorrow.

Selection of the third member has been postponed owing to the expected meeting of the trolleyman's union tonight, at which it is expected the men will ratify the suggestion of the two arbitrators that the issue over the method of arbitration be dropped. This suggestion already has been approved by the trustees.

A statement by the arbitrators following the meeting of the board reads: "In view of the fact that a special meeting of the Boston Car Men's Union has been called for Wednesday, July 15, at 8 o'clock, P. M. in Fort Hall, it was thought wise not to agree upon any third arbitrator until after the meeting had taken place and the recommendation of the two arbitrators which was accepted on Monday by the board of trustees. The arbitrators will meet Wednesday day notwithstanding the above decision."

ACRUE ON MINOR CHANGES
The men's wage committee and General Manager Edward Linn of the Elevated company met and jointly agreed on a number of minor changes in the proposed new contract, which will eliminate references of a number of articles to the arbitrators and materially help to facilitate their work.

Wages will now be the paramount issue for the board of arbitration to make a decision on. The carmen have demanded an increase in wages from 73 1/2 cents an hour to 95 cents an hour and the trustees have met this with a demand for a price 4.95 in pay from 73 1/2 cents an hour to 85 cents an hour, applicable to all classifications.

Eastern Mass. Carment's Wage Hearing Next Week
Hearings on wage scale adjustments for the motormen and conductors of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company will start at the State House, next week, following the selection of Judge Thomas J. Harlow of Lowell as the third member of the board of wage arbitration.

The selection of Judge Harlow was made by the three arbitrators. Fred A. Cummings, vice-president of the railway company, and Attorney James H. Vaher, representing the findings of the board will affect approximately 1,200 employees, the contract under which they are working is about to expire. The paramount issue in the hearings will be whether the wages of the men shall be increased, decreased, or remain as they are.

At the present time, men are receiving 35 cents an hour for motormen, and approximately 48 per cent of the business of the road is carried on the one-man car basis. The men have entered demands for a rate of 75 cents an hour.

WEAVERS TO QUIT AUG. 1 TO ENFORCE DEMANDS
Peterboro, N. J., July 13 (A.P.)—The United Textile Workers last night voted to suspend work August 1 if their demands for a return to the working conditions under the blue book price list of 1923 is not accepted by the manufacturers.

The weavers' demands that were to be presented to manufacturers of Peterboro today, point out over a 10 per cent reduction in wages below the blue book price list in 1924 and are now asking only that the 1923 wage schedule be reestablished. The demands include a minimum wage of 35c weekly and a forty-four hour work week.

GLYNN-MAHAR
EPISODE
CLOSED

The dismissal of James J. Mahar and the appointment of Raymond P. Delano of Dorchester to succeed him as schoolhouse commissioner is believed at City Hall today to have settled once and for all the Glynn-Mahar episode, which has kept the Mayor's office in a turmoil for the past several days.

Meanwhile, the name of Building Commissioner John H. Mahoney is before the civil service commission today for confirmation as schoolhouse commissioner. It is expected that the confirmation of the two new appointments will be made today.

OFFICIAL NOTICE FILED
Late yesterday afternoon, the Mayor, as required by law, filed with City Clerk James Donovan this official notice:

"I have this day removed from the office of Schoolhouse Commissioner James J. Mahar for failure in reports for duty since July 3, 1925."

He also mailed to Mahar, at his home, No. 18 L. street, South Boston, this letter: "Dear Sir: I beg to forward herewith a copy of the official notification filed this day with the city clerk removing you from the office of schoolhouse commissioner for the reasons therein stated."

When Mahar was told over the telephone that the Mayor had removed him, his only comment was "What, again?"

He is chairman of the legislative committee of both the Dorchester Board of Trade and the United Improvement Association. He is first vice-president of the latter organization and was formerly president of the Dorchester Board of Trade.

Massachusetts Operators' Licenses Will Be Honored for Indefinite Period
Harmonious auto traffic relations have been established between Maine and Massachusetts, thus ending a two-years' controversy.

The Maine law which prevented trucks or commercial vehicles from other states going into Maine without being registered has been repealed.

The status of Massachusetts cars is set forth as follows:

Passenger cars and trucks may operate in Maine for an unlimited period unless the owner has a regular abode or business in Maine for more than 30 days.

Massachusetts operators' licenses will be honored for an indefinite period. However, if a Maine registration is taken out, a Maine operator's license must also be obtained.

CANCER CURE IS NOT YET FOUND,
SAYS MAYO

Minnesota Physician Terms London Discovery Interesting, but Not Final
Rochester, Minn., July 13 (A.P.)—Dr. Charles H. Mayo characterized the reported discovery in London of an infective agent of cancer as merely another step in cancer research toward the ultimate goal—a definite cure of this disease.

"The British discovery is interesting," said Dr. Mayo, "but I believe it is merely anticipating another step in the campaign toward control of cancer. Many great scientists today are working on the problem. However, the search for a means of controlling cancer is a matter of years. Any definite cure which comes must stand the test of time and it must be very definitely proven before it will be accepted."

"German scientists have isolated what they believe is a germ causing cancer. The same germ has been discovered in New York and Chicago. Something good and hopeful is being arrived at all the time, but nothing definite has yet been arrived at and scientists everywhere will be inclined to take the conservative view."

CARDINAL LAUDS FUND TO AID ALEXANDERS

Makes Personal Contribution of $50 for Inspector's Widow and Children

His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell has indicated the Boston Evening American's Pickwick disaster police fund and earnestly hopes that the response to this appeal will be generous.

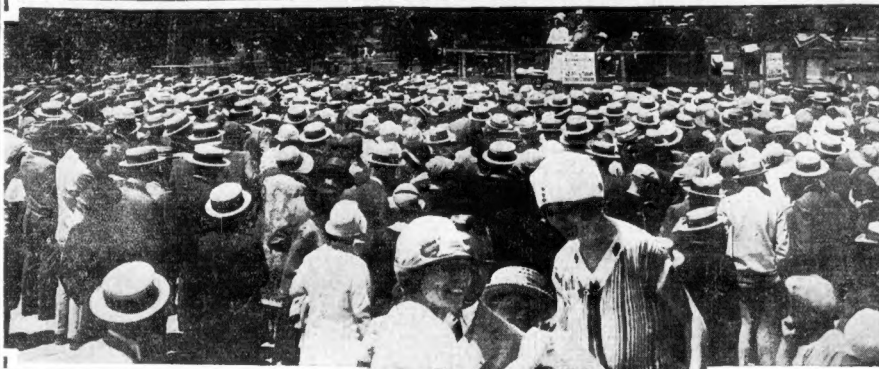

Not only has Cardinal O'Connell endorsed the fund but he made a personal contribution of $50. In sending a check for that amount, Mr. R. J. Haberlin, the Cardinal's secretary, wrote, "His Eminence says that this action of the Boston Evening American meets with his full endorsement and that he earnestly hopes the response to this most deserving appeal will be so generous that the distress and sorrow which has come to the stricken families may be, in some measure at least relieved."

A substantial sum was added to the fund as a result of the excellent open air performance given on Boston Common by members of the "Rose-Marie" company, now playing at the Shubert Theatre. Hundreds of persons listened attentively to the five program arranged by Charles Rudy, musical director of the production, who was at the piano.

The opening number was a solo entitled "Here Come the Mounties," by Charles Meskins, one of the principals of the company, with a male chorus of 15 assisting. Then followed, "The Door of My Dreams," another song hit of the show, by Miss Cora Fry, one of the principals, aided by the entire company of 75 members.

The third number was the popular "Indian Love Call," by Paul Donah, leading man, and Miss Fry, followed by a duet by Miss Fry.

THORNG DRAWN TO THE COMMON BY POLICE FUND SHOW

The concluding number was "Rose Marie," sung by Mr. Donah and the entire company.

In the midst of the program 40 charming chorus girls of the company left the special band stand, reentered through courtesy of Park Commissioner James Shaw, and sang a new song, "The Rose Marie," which was given.

Miss Beatrice Kaye, peppy singer of the production, offered a kiss to the highest bidder but the man who topped the list was bashful and declined to collect, even though a screen was offered him. His donation went into the collection, however, and Miss Kaye said she was perfectly satisfied.

Joe Flynn of the business management, kept the audience in good humor by his witty remarks. In addition to selling newspapers the chorus girls distributed portfolios of "Bird's-Eye Stationery," contributed through courtesy of Philip

H. Bird of No. 429 Boylston street. Mr. Bird also gave personal assistance in making the show a success as did Raymond C. Koon, Harry Mahoney and Henry Hankard of the same company and David C. Conn. Through kindness of J. P. Collins free use of a piano was given.

JEWELLERS AID. The substantial sum of $222 was added to the fund for the widow and six fatherless children of Inspector Benjamin Alexander as a result of the activity of J. H. Kahn of the Kahn Jewelry Company, importers and jobbers, No. 233 Washington street. Mr. Kahn, assisted by Emanuel Abner of Abner's Jewelry Company, No. 213 Washington street, made a collection among the wholesale jewelry trade.

"I knew 'Benny' Alexander for 23 years," said Mr. Kahn. "He was a fine fellow. I was prompted to make a collection when I attended his funeral and saw the circumstances of the family. They have very little and, of course, anyone who has tried to support a family of six children, understands. When I saw his widow and those six young children my heart was touched and so I decided to do my bit."

"The Boston Evening American deserves praise for starting this fund. It is further proof that this great paper is close to the hearts of the people."

OBEYED GIRLS REQUEST TO KILL HER

Beat Her With Bar and Then Choked Her, Youthful Slayer Confesses

Watertown, N. D., July 15 (A.P.)—A charge of first degree murder today faced Winfred Meek, who has admitted killing Myrtle Healy, seventeen, of Garden City. Meek, who is twenty-one years old, said Myrtle Healy and he went automobile riding Sunday night and she asked him to kill her. They drove to a straw stack in an isolated pasture where Meek struck Miss Healy on the head with an iron rod, and then choked her. After placing her body in the straw, he went to a motion picture show and later returned and set fire to the straw. Robert Depest, another youth living near Crocker, was released when Meek assumed responsibility for the killing.

Brewster, N. Y., July 15 (A.P.)—Coroner McKee of Putnam County, is holding an inquest in the death of Ernest Murello, 17, who slipped and fell or deliberately jumped from a wall after he had tied one end of a lath to a limb of a tree and the other around his neck.

Miss Cora Mason, to whom young Murello had shown attention for several years, was with him at the time. She said she twice refused to marry him when he asked her during an auto ride, and he then declared he would kill himself.

When he suddenly swung out from the wall, she ran for help. A few minutes later, when she returned with others, Murello was dead, his neck broken.

Messages of Greeting Sent to Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association Convention

Atlantic City, N. J., July 15.—Greetings from Cardinal O'Connell, carried by the Rt. Rev. Mr. Spillane, and felicitations from the Bishops of Trenton and Major Bader of Atlantic City are among the honors that have been shown the thousands of delegates to the quadrennial convention of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association in session here.

Mr. Spillane, Boston director of the organization, brought the greetings of Cardinal O'Connell, dean of the hierarchy in America, and said the Cardinal was interested in the splendid progress being made by the association.

The report of the president, Mrs. Mahoney, was taken up. She said to effect:

"There has been need of constant care and increasing effort to retain the association all the time, notwithstanding the effort and the great many losses. This has been the experience of all societies that existed. Indeed, our own association has been less than that of many other societies that were compelled to re-form."

However, she contended the re-formation accomplished in the past four years made the association all the stronger, and in reality progress had been made the past year.

CHelsea BRIDGE JAM HOLDS UP 2,000 AUTOS

Forty Trolley Cars and Thousands of Commuters Caught for Nearly an Hour

Clogged mechanism on the Chelsea bridge over the Mystic River delayed thousands of persons bound for work today, resulted in a jam of nearly 2,000 automobiles and forty trolley cars and tied up traffic for an hour.

The draw was not half an hour before repair men could close it. By that time the mass of vehicles was stuck, half way to City square.

U. S. Disavows Man who 'Kicked' to League

Washington, July 15.—The State Department has advised the League of Nations that it cannot vouch for the competency of Prof. Edward Ross of the University of Wisconsin, who charged that slavery existed in the colonies of Portugal, in Africa.

Ross's complaint was made direct to the League.

It was not until after a half-hour was required to disengage it. The line of automobiles and street cars from Lynn, Chelsea and Revere, crowded behind the bridge, and on the Boston side, crowded traffic filled Chelsea that time the mass of vehicles was stuck, half way to City square.

TO CUT CORNER OF SIDEWALKS FOR SPEED

Twenty-Foot Radial Enables Cars to Take Turn Without Slowing Down

Cutting more of the "corner" off sidewalks at busy street intersections, as a means of speeding up traffic, is planned by the Boston Street Commission, which is studying the methods adopted in New York.

The present radius at most intersections is approximately seven feet, but it is planned to increase this to 20 feet wherever possible.

Instead of abrupt turns at corners the 20-foot radius gives a long, sweeping curve which enables cars to hug close to the curbstone and make a speedy turn.

The plan is of course feasible only where the sidewalks are wide, and where the buildings are set back at least ten feet from the building line.

In the downtown section there are few places, owing to the narrow sidewalks, where the plan can be introduced, but in the outlying districts, in the opinion of Chief Engineer William Sullivan of the street laying out department, a 20 foot radius would be not only practical but desirable.

Along new Cambridge street, the corner curves are to be of a 10-foot radius.

Norway Students Congratulate Scopes

Dayton, Tenn., July 15.—John Thomas Scopes, who is on trial here for teaching evolution, received the following cable from Oslo, Norway:

"The Norwegian Students' Association congratulates you for teaching truth, opposing ignorance and fighting the Big Book." (Signed), "Viva, President."

"Wonder who they mean by 'The Big Book'?" Scopes said, as he displayed the message.

KIDNAPING PAGES IN 2 STATE TOWNS

Rioting between Klanism and anti-Klanism, which broke out simultaneously in two sections of the State, resulted in scores being injured, at least two seriously.

One of the riot revolvers was used. The scenes of the riots were Leicester, a suburb of Worcester, and Medford.

The more serious of the riots occurred at Leicester, where the Klan members were finally victorious, overwhelming their attackers. In this riot scores were injured, automobiles were battered and windows were broken, while members of both sides engaged out and bleeding from their injuries.

About 400 members of the hooded order attended the meeting in Leicester and these were attacked by the anti-Klanism, who showed the shrouded figures with axes. The Klanmen replied with a barrage of sticks and stones and then the two forces clashed. The Klanmen had a superior force and overpowered their opponents, after which they formed a parade and marched through the town.

The paraders were greeted with a hail of missiles and general disorder prevailed. Hand-to-hand encounters were frequent and many men sustained injuries.

PRISONER RESCUED.
Patrolman James Fitzpatrick of Revere endeavored to arrest one of the men who police say, had a revolver. The two were engaged in a stiff struggle when a rescue party prompted the policeman until he finally released his prisoner, who escaped without a scratch.

The police were unable to cope with the situation and the battle continued until the combatants finally tired themselves out. Two men were knocked unconscious and lay in the street until rescued by companions in the mob.

The meeting was secret and was in session some time before the town was alerted.

Then a hostile crowd soon collected and after a noisy altercation, the police were unable to swim ashore. Medical aid was needed. About two to one, the Klanmen, after some fifteen minutes of a bitter struggle, began to retreat and in a short time the whole crowd had dispersed. No attempt was made by the rioters to pursue the hooded fraternity.

One man is reported injured. He is said to be "Miller" Higgins of Woburn. He was struck on the jaw and was unconscious for nearly an hour.

The police knew nothing of the affair until it was over.

DRIVE FOR BACK TAXES STIRS FAIRHAVEN

Employment of Deputy Sheriffs From Out of Town Rouses Hornet's Nest

New Bedford, July 15.—Determination of the authorities to collect back taxes amounting to $115,000 from the citizens of Fairhaven has stirred up a hornet's nest in that town. Announcement that deputy sheriffs from out of town would be employed to collect the taxes by means of warrants caused great excitement.

The collection of taxes has been in for a number of years, some of the taxes being owed as far back as 1920.

The town's finances have been in good shape and this is responsible for the feeble efforts in the past to secure the money.

DRY CHIEFS BAN POLITICS IN PICKING RUL FORCES

Washington, July 15 (A.P.)—Prohibition experts went to work today to complete reorganization of a system aimed at making the United States an arid as Death Valley.

Consideration of appointment of the major portion of a conference attended by General C. C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, D. H. Blair, Prohibition Commissioner, R. A. Haynes and others.

That the political qualifications of prospective appointees were at once cast into the discard was the understanding. Men qualified by experience, training and moral character will be considered, according to officials. If a shrewdly chosen, the politicians control. It was the belief Andrews would decline to function further.

ONCE-OVERS

HOW MANY TIMES DO YOU EXPECT PEOPLE TO EXCUSE YOUR CARELESSNESS?

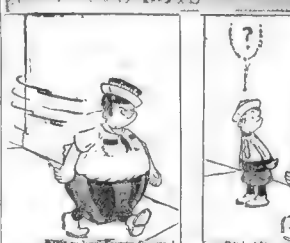

Your carelessness has made another great deal of trouble. At first you were nervous about it and rather feared that it might cost you something to get out of the mess. But everything seemed to work out satisfactorily and you emerged comparatively free as far as any extra effort on your part is concerned. So you let yourself down and again you are careless and you expect to get out of trouble again if you use diplomacy. But some day you are due for a jolt. You will wonder what is the cause of your disappointment in not being able to get what you find very much want. You don't find anyone to tell you the reason, either. And the real reason will be that having gotten off easy, you have not measured what it has cost your friends to help you out of your difficulty and there is a limit to their endurance though they may not say so. How many times must you be taught the same lesson?

JERRY ON THE JOB

DAILY SHORT STORY

"Oh, Nancy," called Lulu as she wriggled in vain to put her hands in the middle of her back. "Nancy, come here at once!" The tone sounded a command. Nancy took her red hands from the pan of dishes she was washing, wiped them on a towel hurriedly and then ran to the bedroom where her sister sister was getting ready to meet the train. "Here, Nancy, take this cloth and wipe your mouth right now. I don't just see I am in a terrible hurry." Lulu screamed. Nancy said nothing, but took the dress in her bare hand and began to look it mechanically. During the process, her bare hand happened to touch her sister's back. Lulu screamed and shivered. "Your hands are all wet, Nancy," she scolded. "You will ruin my dress." "I dried them and came as fast as I could," defended Nancy. "Well, here, take this cloth and wipe them dry. I can't abide wet hands about me..." she wrapped her little nose in disgust. Nancy did as she was told. It never occurred to her that she should expect anything else from her sister except scolding. She only envied the companionship that existed between Lulu and Marj. She never thought of her as being a part of her life. Lulu had always been just "little sister" and a general "fetch and carry" for the older girl. It never occurred to her that she had any rights at home and her generous disposition had caused her sisters to lose sight of the fact that she was growing up and should have a certain amount of social life. Some time Lulu looked upon the little pointed face of Nancy and then examined her own critically in the mirror. What she saw didn't give her any satisfaction. Lulu didn't have the fine texture of skin that Nancy did and she didn't have the jet-black eyes in the same either. Lulu was a slender, thin reflection of Nancy as she dried her hands on the towel. What she saw caused her to frown terribly. One thing was certain—Douglas was not to see much of Nancy. That would never do.

To Meet Douglas Douglas was the young man that Lulu had met the year before at school and she was dreaming to meet him at the train. For some reason, he hadn't been as keen as she had found him at the shore when she visited him for her home for a week the following summer. That ought to fix things, for there was Marj's solemn enigma and Nancy would be before long with that growing attractiveness... Lulu was getting nervous. She was twenty-three and not even an elan of marriage. When she saw Nancy's pretty little face reflected in her mirror, she bit her lip and stamped her French pump. "Oh, do hurry, Nancy," she said irritably. "Do you want me to be late?" she fumed and looked at her "for heaven's sake, wash that rouge off your face—it's terrible." "It isn't rouge," said Nancy meekly. "I never had any in my life." "Well, see that you don't let Douglas see you that way. I'd be mortified to death..." She was busy applying color to her face, choosing as she spoke. Nancy stared at her with open mouth. Then she gazed suddenly "You are just smearing it on," she accused. "Well, that's my business—smudge it a little. 'You get out of here'!" Lulu met Marj as she was leaving the house. "Don't you want me to come along?" asked Marj, trying her sister's make-up. "Gee, but you have the war-paint on! she murmured sweetly. Lulu gave her a passing glance. "I am taking the roadster and there is only room for two."

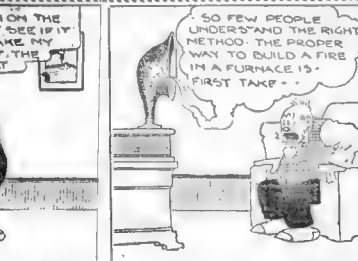

Going To Be Stiny "Oh, you're going to be very stiny with him," cooed Marj. But Lulu was out the door and didn't hear. As the train drew up to the station, she settled herself indignantly back among the cushions of the car, one hand lying across the wheel. She had practiced that attitude and knew it to be striking. Lulu dare face Douglas against the series of her hair, one eye almost entirely covered by it. She saw the eyes of Douglas light up with admiration as he stepped off the train and found her. She hurried forward, shook her hand in a vigorous brown one and his exclaimed. "You're looking fine, Lulu—never saw you any better!" "Well, you are too," she returned, sweeping him with a full glance from her dark eyes. "Jump in and we will take a little spin to show you the sights..." she made a little grimace. She drove home by a roundabout way because she wanted to put off the time when Douglas should meet the rest of the family. She wanted so sure about her status with him that she could risk an encounter with Marj right away. She wanted him to herself for a while. She showed him her enchanted woodland, a most romantic spot, she laid her hand seemingly unaccountably upon his arm, and she gave him all she had in her eyes. But Douglas seemed to be immune to her charms. In fact, he grew restive and asked her frankly if they were never going to arrive as he wanted to wash up. "It was the longest day before Douglas caught a glimpse of Nancy, for Lulu had succeeded in keeping them all away from him. Even Marj with her persistence was not able to see him from Lulu's head. This background for her beauty. This had been there ten minutes when Nancy arrived with the tea.

Admired Nancy Lulu saw Douglas give a start as he caught sight of her. Then he stared frankly. "Gee, that's a pretty girl," he said when she was gone. "Who is she?" Lulu was thinking fast. "She's just the cook's daughter," she lied glibly. "A little nobody," she said. "She didn't know why she said it but she did know that she would send Nancy away for the rest of the week. Douglas stopped his tea thoughtfully, paying not the slightest attention to the fair girl at his side. All her postures and charms were practiced in vain. He seemed not even to know that she was there except when she spoke. Suddenly he turned and looked at her. "Lulu, I have been thinking," he began reaching for her hand. Her eyes lighted eagerly. Here it was coming at last. He watched her, thinking. Then he patted the hand he held. "You are a nice girl..." he said lamely. She shrugged and could not hide the disappointment in her eyes. And she had let him see so plainly that she would have fallen in his arms. She rose and excused herself. "Please, amuse yourself until dinner time," she told him. "I have some letters to write..." She showed herself upon the bed when she got to her room and the angry tears gushed.

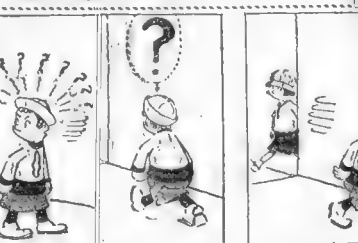

Wonderful Family Douglas strolled about the grounds his face inscrutable. What was the matter with him anyway? Here was a lovely girl—wonderful family—money—everything. He saw the little girl that had served tea romping with the dog on the lawn. He would go and talk to her. "Hello," he called. "Let me play with your dog." She looked up startled and blushed. He caught his breath with a full glimpse of her young face. "Did Lulu say you could play?" she asked naively. "Lulu?" he repeated, puzzled. "She went in the house to rest..." Nothing more was said. Then, he joined in the wild scramble with the two collies and soon they were tumbling about the grass, howling with delight. Then Marj, the cook, came to the door to call Nancy. "There is your mother," he said. She looked up quickly for her mother had been dead for years. "Mother?" she said—any more she would say. "Why, aren't you the cook's daughter?" he asked in surprise. She shriveled and blushed at that. "Mother?" she said. "What made you think that?" He didn't answer. A faint suspicion had begun to take form in his mind. "Who are you?" he asked. "Oh, I am not anybody especially—but Nancy Lulu's cousin sister..."

Caught His Breath He caught his breath as he reached out and caught Lulu thinking the while. So it was the sort of girl he had admired and desired? A great light dawned on his face. "Lulu, I have been thinking..." He had been thinking of her. Things had been cleared up. The next morning he was in the city, pleading anxiety about the way to the city he was thinking over and over of the dark girl in the corner hat who had met him on his arrival. Only now he knew that beneath the lovely exterior lay a selfish heart. Then another picture flared across his vision, a young girl tumbling about the lawn with two scrapping collies. He knew then that some day he would go back.

"Her people have made New England the Switzerland of America for skilled workmanship. Here, where the mechanic arts first took root in America, lives the greatest concentration of skillful, adaptable labor in America."

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

It should not be at all difficult for New England to act as a unit; each of at least fifteen States is larger in area than these six put together; two, New York and Pennsylvania, have greater numbers of inhabitants.

"Forward, New England!" Call Minute-Men Governors of Six Forward-Looking States

SIX BROAD-VISIONED LEADERS of New England thought and New England action, each a firm believer in New England and the future of New England, have been instrumental in calling a meeting of almost boundless potential importance to the commerce, the industry and the nearly eight million people of these Six States.

These leaders of New England are the Governors of New England.

Taking up and carrying forward the great work initiated one year ago, when plans were formulated which resulted in our first New England Week, each of the Governors has named three delegates to a meeting which will be held one week from today at the State House in Boston and out of which there is expected to emerge a New England Board of Trade.

The New England Board of Trade will have but ONE duty.

It will "devise ways and means of increasing the sale and consumption of New England-made goods and New England services, including the services of the railroad and other transportation companies, the schools and colleges, and the Summer and Winter resorts."

Perhaps the most striking method which has been suggested for thus increasing the sale and consumption of New England-made goods and New England services, and which occupies a place of prominence on the tentative program drawn up for next Wednesday's conference, is a Pageant of New England Industry, an annual Fair, where the products of New England may be not only displayed, but sold.

Time for Action

"Just another organization?"

If it were no more than that, Brewster, Winant, Billings, Fuller, Pothier and Trumbull would not touch it with a ten-foot pole!

"But the inevitable subscription paper will be passed around; there will have to be money; the chorus, ultimately and inevitably, will be: 'Give! Give! Give!'"

Wrong again. On this occasion, and in connection with THIS enterprise, there is to be no passing the hat.

No one realizes more than the public-spirited citizens who aligned themselves behind New England Week, and who have taken the logical next step in the promotion of a New England Board of Trade, that this section has been both organized to death and "subscribed" to death.

The New England Board of Trade, if it lives beyond the teething age—and there appears to be every reason to expect a long and useful life for it—will be self-supporting.

You remember what Mark Twain said about our New England weather. Everybody talked about it, he said, but nobody did anything.

Well, that is about the way these leaders of New England commerce and labor and finance and industry have come to look upon the present situation with respect to certain branches of New England industry and agriculture, conditions which have brought about a certain amount of unemployment and a certain degree of financial depression.

Pageant of New England Industry

The time has arrived, these thoughtful, forceful and able New Englanders believe, when New England should DO SOMETHING.

THEY propose a "New England Board of Trade."

THEY SUGGEST an annual "Pageant of New England Industry."

Wednesday after Wednesday, for something more than a year and a half, we have discussed New England and the interests of New England on this page with the Minute Men of New England.

We have been, and we are, optimistic about New England because there is nothing in New England to be pessimistic about.

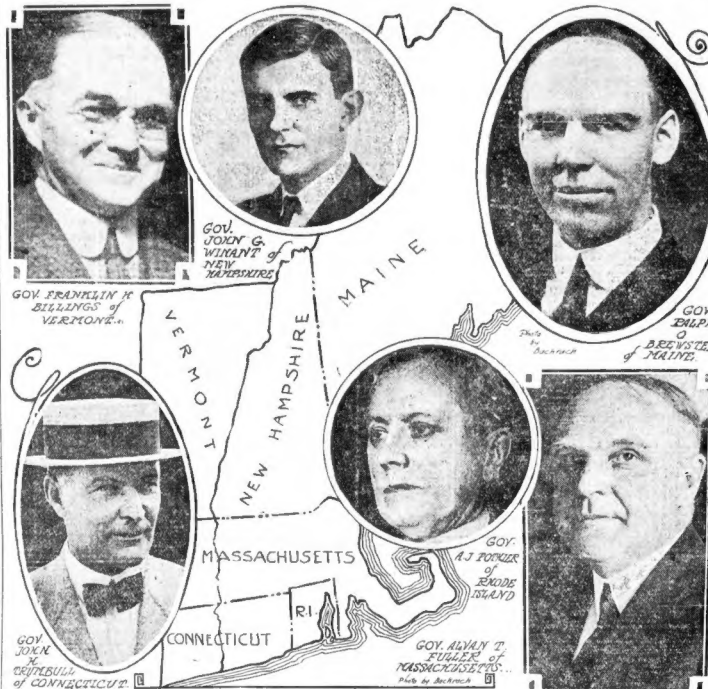

We have talked together here about the commerce of New England, about manufacturing and agriculture in New England, about fisheries and good roads, about our educational facilities, about New England workmen and of the charm of New England as Vacation Land and place of residence.

And the more we talk about New England, the more we love New England, and the more reasons we discover to justify that love.

Taking the broad view, "by and large," as they say, there is nothing the matter with this section.

It is true, however, that conditions have been

THEY BELIEVE IN NEW ENGLAND!

I BELIEVE IN NEW ENGLAND. ¶ In the pre-eminence of her location as the gateway to Europe. ¶ In the beauty and healthfulness of her hills and lakes. ¶ In the undeveloped, untapped power of her rivers, and the ocean commerce of her seaports. ¶ In the variety and marvelous efficiency of her industries. ¶ In the skill and inventive genius of her workmen, the public spirit of her business men, and the resulting prosperity of her people.

I BELIEVE IN NEW ENGLAND'S MISSION. ¶ In the glory of her past and the greatness of her future—and I believe that the same spirit of the Boston Tea Party, of Lexington, and the Civil War—the spirit that lavishly gave its blood, brains and money to the upbuilding of the country—still lives in New England's sons and daughters, and waits only the word to call all New England to the still greater things which are before us.

I BELIEVE in the tremendous, transforming power of optimism; I believe that it is lack of faith which checks the development of individuals, associations and sections. ¶ That skepticism is the only thing which stands between New England and her great destiny.

THEREFORE, I AM RESOLVED that I will avoid, and help others to escape from, the deadening, demoralizing rut of criticism, skepticism and inertia. ¶ That I will be a booster, not a knocker. ¶ And that I WILL NEGLECT NO OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW MY FAITH IN THE FUTURE OF NEW ENGLAND AND TO LABOR UNCEASINGLY FOR ITS FULFILLMENT.—From the "New England Creed"; copyright, Pilgrim Publicity Association.

what the great mercantile agencies describe in their occasional reviews as "spotty."

TWO of our great industries, cotton textiles and shoes, have not been doing so well. In these lines there has been considerable part-time employment.

The New England railroads, on the other hand, are doing better than they have done in several years. The building trades are driving forward with unabated speed and with no sign that the end of the drive is in sight. Fisheries are doing well. Farmers are hard at work and hopeful. The year at the shore and mountain and lakeside resorts promises to stand well up in the neighborhood of the record-breakers.

There are, nevertheless, things that every New Englander can do—and should do—for all New England.

We dwell together here, nearly 8,000,000 of us, in 66,424 square miles of territory.

Each of at least fifteen States of the Union is larger in area than all New England! Compare this area, for example, with California's 158,297 square miles, or the 265,896 which lie within the boundaries of Texas.

Or, consider our 8,000,000 people and reflect that the population of Pennsylvania is nearly 9,000,000, and that of the great Empire State of New York 11,105,625.

We ARE one people in New England, one REGION, and there are times when, for our own best good, we must ACT as one people.

Hark back, for one striking example, to the plight of the potato growers of northeastern Maine, less than one year ago.

Would it not have been a good thing for the people of Aroostook County, and for all the rest of us, if, acting for all New England, some central organization could have advised Connecticut and Rhode Island and western Massachusetts of the situation in Potato Land? How quickly the troubles of Aroostook would have passed away if some central organization, with the interests of all New England at heart, had set up the machinery, first for publicity and secondly for connecting the producer in need with the consumer, equally in need!

There always has been, and there always will be, big work to be done by such an organization as the proposed "New England Board of Trade."

It need not, it should not and it will not duplicate or overlap the work of any existing organization.

It will not be a rival or a competitor of the several State organizations, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, or any purely local body.

It will be a regional organization exclusively, working with and for these other organizations.

There are chambers of commerce in New England as alert, as vigorous, as aggressive and quite as successful as any in the United States.

New England is alive, too, with service clubs, organizations like the Rotary, the Kiwanis and the Lion clubs, each doing a splendidly worth-while work for the community it serves.

BUT—

How is Maine to know, through any means now at hand or through any organization now in existence, that Connecticut would be glad of co-operation along any particular line?

The New England Board of Trade will be the direct result of "New England Week," inaugurated last September by a volunteer committee made up of men and women representing the merchants, manufacturers, wage-earners and bankers of this section.

Not a Job for Over-Night

The result of that first attempt to "sell" New England products and New England services to the people of New England warranted the belief that considerable improvement in the industrial and financial situation could be brought about by a PERMANENT organization.

Experience gained from New England Week indicated that a definite, intensive and prolonged sales campaign would bring substantial results.

The public mind is beginning to awaken to existing economic conditions throughout New England, and the present appears to be a most favorable opportunity for a determined effort to bring home to the people of these Six States the help they can give by the exercise of a little thought and a little care in the selection of their purchases.

To accomplish lasting results a campaign will be required extending over two or even three years. A public habit of this nature—the exercise of particular thought and care in purchasing—cannot be created, cannot be firmly established over night.

The proposed Pageant of New England Industry, in the opinion of the gentlemen who helped to promote New England Week, can be made to provide sufficient funds to pay all the expense of organizing and maintaining the New England Board of Trade.

Awakening of New England

There has been an awakening all over the Six States.

First came Governor Brewster and Maine, as was proper, inaugurating a nation-wide publicity campaign, and with almost incredible vigor Maine took her stand with California and Florida as a "booster" State.

Urged in like manner by another youthful and progressive Governor, New Hampshire was next to join the procession of commonwealths which make no concealment of their special advantages.

Vermont's newest community enterprise, as was reported on this page only two weeks ago, is the National Vermont Association, sponsored by the Hon. John Barrett, and with branches in every State in the Union. Rhode Island is inaugurating a State campaign along "New England Week" lines.

Massachusetts?

The eighteen New Englanders who meet in Boston one week from today, to discuss ways and means to launch next Fall the New England Board of Trade, will come at the earnest solicitation of Governor Alvan T. Fuller and as Governor Fuller's guests.

As the representatives of Massachusetts business, industry and finance, Governor Fuller has selected Mr. George W. Milton, president of the Jordan Marsh Company; Mr. Louis K. Liggett, president of the United Drug Company, and Mr. John S. Lawrence.

Maine will be represented by Mr. Robert Braun, Mr. Hiram Ricker and Mr. Guy Gannett; New Hampshire, by Mr. Paul A. Brown, Mr. Guy A. Swenson and Mr. Albert E. Worcester; Vermont, Mr. Fred A. Howland and Mr. Albert S. Brigham, Mr. James S. Brigham.

Rhode Island's spokesmen will be Mr. Theophile Guerin, Mr. Richard B. Watrous and Mr. Henry D. Sharpe; and from Connecticut will come Mr. George B. Chandler, Mr. Charles L. Eyanson and Mr. Wilson H. Lee.

A conference by men like these, having for its purpose the best interests of the entire community, can have but one result.

The order is to be:

"Forward, New England!"
